

InterviewMAKEOVER

This is not what they mean by "sports jacket."

Three words: Lose the cap.

This 'do won't do if you're looking to make a good impression. Think simple and neat.

You want to show your abilities – not your undergarments. Forget anything see-through. Keep it conservative.

Khakis are okay – but don't show up looking like you slept in them.

No jeans, no matter what the brand or how much they cost. 'Nuf said.

These shoes may work for school – and even for some jobs. But for the interview, go for a more professional look.
