

Chart Your Course

You've probably heard it all your life: "What do you want to be when you grow up?" When you were seven, all that seemed pretty innocent and far off. Now, that same question may be driving you nuts. Unless you're really focused on one particular area – and let's face it, few people are – making a choice about what degree to pursue can be pretty intimidating. Or, you may know what you'd like to do for a career, but not sure about the type of education to need to land that job.

The Internet can be a great resource for career information. (Check out <http://content.monstertrak.monster.com/tools/careerconverter> for some great info.) Or, check with your high school counselor. In the meantime, listed here are some popular programs offered at colleges and universities across the country – and where that path may lead for you. 📍
